GRI Certification Training for Business Associations

Empower your members and strengthen institutional leadership by building sustainability reporting and ESG disclosure capacity using GRI, the world's leading sustainability reporting framework.

Building Sustainable Business Ecosystems through Reporting Leadership
Business associations increasingly play a strategic role in helping industries:

- Strengthen sustainability performance.
- Improve accountability and transparency.
- Align with global ESG expectations.
- Support responsible business practices.
- Prepare members for evolving investors, markets, and regulatory demands.

This GRI Certification Program equips associations and member organizations with practical sustainability reporting and disclosure expertise to support long-term competitiveness and responsible growth.

Applying GRI Across Industries and Member Networks

Business associations are increasingly supporting members to navigate ESG disclosure requirements, sustainability expectations, responsible business standards, and stakeholder accountability.

This training is especially valuable for associations interested in:

- Helping members integrate sustainability disclosures into annual reports, integrated reports, and corporate reporting systems.
- Supporting ESG and climate-related reporting readiness across sectors and industries.
- Strengthening responsible business practices and sustainability communication among member organizations.
- Building institutional capacity around governance, transparency, and sustainability accountability.
- Positioning industries and sectors for sustainable investment and international market competitiveness.

Why train with us?

- Practical industry and association perspective.
- This training is designed for business associations and industry bodies supporting organizations through the growing importance of ESG disclosure, sustainability reporting, and responsible business leadership.

The program connects sustainability reporting directly to real organizational priorities including:

- ESG and sustainability performance.
- Stakeholder trust and engagement.
- Industry competitiveness.
- Institutional accountability.
- Governance and transparency.
- Responsible business positioning.
- Industry-relevant learning experience.

Participants engage with:

- Cross-sector case studies.
- Sustainability reporting exercises.
- Interactive peer discussions.
- Practical disclosure applications.
- Mock assessments and exam preparations.

Our Trainers

Our facilitators combine technical sustainability reporting expertise with practical experience supporting institutions across Africa on ESG disclosure, sustainability reporting, impact communication, and institutional reporting systems. Collectively, the team has trained thousands of professionals across corporates, financial institutions, development organizations, associations, and advisory firms.
